The contractor will inventory existing vehicle-based systems, engine-based systems as well as global positioning systems developed by original equipment manufacturers and after-market suppliers. The contractor will undertake a thorough review of technical and scientific reports/papers and validation studies on the accuracy, reliability and limitations of commercial EDRs.

3.0 Background

On September 18, 2013 there was a collision between an OC Transpo Alexander Dennis Enviro500 double-decker bus and VIA rail Train 51 (pulled by General Electric P42 Genesis locomotive), headed for Toronto, at 8:48AM at a rail crossing near Fallowfield Road and Woodroffe Avenue in Ottawa. The bus was traveling on the Transitway, the city's dedicated road for buses. The train had departed from Ottawa Train Station at 8:32AM and the bus had just departed from Fallowfield Transitway Station. The bus had a total of eighty-three people aboard. The level crossing's crossing gates, lights, and bells engaged 47 seconds before the crash, and its gates were fully horizontal across the road 25 seconds before the crash. The train did not sound its whistle due to a municipal ban on train whistles being used between the times of 8:00PM and 12:00 noon. However, the train's bell was activated. The train was travelling at 75 kilometres per hour (47 mph), in an area where the speed limit is 161 kilometres per hour (100 mph), at the time of the collision and had engaged its emergency brakes 2 seconds prior. The bus was travelling at 67.6 kilometres per hour, in a zone where the speed limit was 60 kilometres per hour, before the brakes were applied. The bus' brakes were applied 3 seconds before the crash, though the full force of the brakes was not initially applied. The collision sheared off the front end of the bus and derailed the train.

Six people were fatally injured as a result of the collision and a further thirty-five people were injured on the bus (five with serious injuries and thirty with minor injuries). None of the train's passengers or crew members was injured.

As a result of the collision and the involvement of a train, the Transportation Safety Board was called into investigate the collision. A number of recommendations were made as a result of the investigation, three of which involved Motor Vehicle Safety at Transport Canada. One recommendation was to require commercial passenger buses to be equipped with dedicated, crashworthy, event data recorders.

In response, Motor Vehicle Safety has noted:

- The safety benefit of Event Data Recorders is secondary (i.e. they do not themselves prevent or mitigate the effect of collisions) and as such it could be difficult showing a positive cost/benefit assessment to justify mandating their installation.
- The federal government has responsibility for new and imported vehicle standards and regulations but has no authority under the Motor Vehicle Safety Act to retroactively order the devices to be installed in vehicles that are already in use.

- There are no United States or United Nations safety regulations requiring event data recorders on large commercial vehicles of any type.
- Currently, Motor Vehicle Safety has insufficient training to fully assess the usefulness of such devices and the ability to correctly read and analyze the data.

TOTAL POINTS: /100

Total maximum technical points = 100 points minimum technical points = 80 points
BASIS OF SELECTION

Bids will be assessed in accordance with the entire requirement of the bid solicitation including the technical and financial evaluation criteria. The contractor will be selected on the basis of the highest responsive combined rating of technical merit and price. The total proposal rating of each proposal will be calculated as follows:

Rating of Technical Proposal

\text{Total Technical Points} \times 70\% = \text{maximum 70 points}

Maximum Technical Points

The bidder with the lowest cost proposal will be awarded maximum financial points (30 points).

Other bids will be evaluated based on the formula:

\text{FINANCIAL SCORE} = \frac{\text{Lowest TOTAL ESTIMATED COST ($)}}{\text{Bidder’s TOTAL ESTIMATED COST ($)}} \times 30

CALCULATION OF TOTAL SCORE:

[\text{Bidder’s TECHNICAL SCORE (70%)} + \text{[Bidder’s FINANCIAL SCORE (30%)]} = \text{Bidder’s TOTAL SCORE (100%)}.

One contract will be awarded in total as a result of this bid solicitation.
